JOHN and MARK X. CRONIN

ENTREPRENEURS • PHILANTHROPISTS

SPEAKING TOPICS:

John and Mark give inspiring talks leaving audiences moved and motivated:

- Nothing Holds Me Back: Turning Obstacles into Opportunities
- Power in the Mission: Spreading Happiness is Good Business
- Hiring the Differently Abled is not Altruism, it is Good Business

John Cronin and his dad, Mark X. Cronin, are memorable and engaging speakers

Their keynote addresses and engaging presentations create excitement and tap into the emotions of audiences. Their memorable story tells of overcoming challenges and emerging onto the national stage as award-winning entrepreneurs, philanthropists, and advocates for individuals with differing abilities.

John is a young man with Down syndrome but that has never held John back. Together, John and Mark have built a multi-million dollar, internationally-renowned business, John's Crazy Socks, which is now the world's largest online sock store.

John and Mark are on a mission to spread happiness and they candidly share the lessons they have learned in business and as a family.

More than half their employees have a differing ability and every day they show what people with differing abilities can do. They are fierce advocates for people with differing abilities and have testified twice before the U.S. Congress and spoken at the United Nations.

John and Mark are winners of the prestigious EY Entrepreneur of the Year and have received many accolades for their work. They have presented and given keynote addresses to more than 100 organizations including Microsoft, LinkedIn, EY, Bank of America, SHRM, Special Olympics and Campbell Snacks as well as many large not-for-profit organizations and universities across the U.S. and Canada. All presentations are customized for each audience.
